Dialogues with UTokyo Professors:

UT7 Next Life Research Group

What Does it Mean to Create a New Concept of Life?

What constitutes groundbreaking research in a university setting? Tokyo College postdoctoral fellows will be conducting interviews with UTokyo professors in the UT7 research group to find out how they are engaging in new forms of research driven by curiosity and ultimately contributing to the evolution of our understanding of life.

What is UT7?

UT7 is a new research organization formed by scientists from different departments and disciplines at the University of Tokyo. With their mission being to create a new “concept of life,” they are conducting research activities across all areas related to biological and social life.

Every Wednesday from November 1
